Dear << IFERP Member>>

Personalized events are here to stay. In the age of the individual, tailor-made customer experiences are ruling the roost - everything from consumer goods to fashion, and now events are being personalized to appeal to the sensibilities of the individual consumer.

With this being the case, IFERP organises events with customised support in order to provide members and participants with convenient access. IFERP provides participants with the flexibility to participate and associate with events such as the following:

- The option to choose their own learning style.
- The capacity to select their preferred mode of attendance.
- The ability to choose their preferred method of communication.
- More overall freedom in terms of content, speakers, seminars, and other events.

As part of this month's newsletter, IFERP brings you all the biggest and most highly anticipated conferences, scientific events, speakers, book chapters, journals, and more, from the world of academia.
